

To attend in Ankara: Radicalization in the Mediterranean Region. Old and New Drivers

Announcement published by Lorenzo Kamel on Friday, December 11, 2015

Type:

Conference

Date:

December 14, 2015

Location:

Turkey

Subject Fields:

Middle East History / Studies, Humanities, Social Sciences

Radicalization in the Mediterranean Region:

Old and New Drivers

A New-Med Conference

in cooperation with the center for middle eastern strategic studies (Orsam), Ankara

Ankara, 14 December 2015

Büyükhanlı Park Hotel

Simon Bolivar Caddesi, 34 - Lycia Hall

8:30 Registration of Participants

9:00-9:30 INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

Şaban Kardaş, ORSAM

Massimo Carnelos, Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation

9:30-11:00 Session I - How It Was, How It Is: Root Causes of the Current Regional Instability

Key questions: What is the mix of root causes and contingent factors behind processes leading to instability and violent radicalization in the Mediterranean region? Are these causes linked, as often claimed, to a “Middle Eastern exceptionalism”? What role does religion play? What role do unsolved conflicts play? What is the link between the macro level (geopolitical competition, weak governance, conflict) and the micro level (individuals and groups embracing radicalization in their respective communities)? How the equilibrium between the local regional “minorities” and “majorities” were in the past? What are the main new aspects, if any?

Chair: Emiliano Alessandri, OSCE, Vienna

Panelists: Toby Matthiesen, Oxford University: "Sectarianism in the International Relations of the Middle East: Does it matter?"

Moshe Ma'oz, The Hebrew University of Jerusalem: "Religious-Nationalistic

Radicalization in Israel/Palestine: A Disastrous Syndrome?"

Lorenzo Kamel, Harvard University/IAI: "Ethnocentric Drives in the Middle East: an Historical Perspective"

Benoit Challand, New School for Social Research, New York: "Thinking Beyond

'Regional Stability'. The Destabilizing Factor of International and Regional Aid"

11:00-11:30

Coffee Break

11:30-13:00

Session II - The Phenomenon of “Foreign Terrorist Fighters” Explained

Key questions: What do we know and what lessons have we learned from the apparently burgeoning phenomenon of so-called “foreign terrorist fighters” leaving their homes in neighboring countries and regions to join conflicts in the Middle East? Is this phenomenon truly new or have only the scope and the modalities evolved? In which way radicalization processes intersect with the phenomenon of foreign terrorist fighters? What role can anti-radicalization policies and campaigns play in the mix of strategies aimed at stemming the phenomenon?

Chair: Murat Yeşiltaş, SETA Foundation

Panelists: Lisa Watanabe, ETH Zurich: "Foreign Fighters and North African Countries"

Dietrich Jung, University of Southern Denmark: "The search for meaning in war':
Foreign fighters in comparative perspective"

Haldun Yalçinkaya, TOBB University of Economics and Technology: "Foreign Terrorist Fighters and Turkey"

Cemil Kilinç, Hedayah Center : "Lessons Learned on FTF Phenomena from Hedayah's Perspective"

13:00-14:30 Buffet-Lunch

14:30-16:00 Session III: De-Radicalization and The Dynamic Interaction Between Religion and Politics

Key questions: Which roles do religion, nationalism and religious nationalism play in the processes unfolding in the MENA? Do religions explain dynamics of conflict or merely provide manifestations of it? What role can religious traditions and religious leaders play in countering radicalization processes? In which ways interreligious and intra-religious dialogue help?

Chair: Necati Anaz, UTSAM

Panelists: Matteo Legrenzi, Ca' Foscari University of Venice: "Iran, Saudi Arabia and the New Religious and Political Proxy Wars in the Middle East"

Saban Ali Düzgün, University of Ankara: "Islam and Radicalization"

Paolo Branca, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Milan: "The Caliphate Between History and Myth"

Mohammad Abu Rumman, Center for Strategic Studies at the University of Jordan:

"What Went Wrong with the 'War on Terrorism'?"

16:00-16:30 Concluding Remarks

Emiliano Alessandri, OSCE, Vienna

Fatma Ceren Yazgan, Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Turkey

Lorenzo Kamel, Harvard University/IAI

16:30 End of the Conference