

Fri Sept 30: Nikolayenko on Gender and State Repression in Belarus

Discussion published by Mara Lazda on Monday, September 26, 2022

The Gender and Transformation in Central-Eastern Europe and Eurasia Workshop returns with in-person (and Zoom) meetings this fall.

Our first meeting is next week, September 30, when we welcome:

Olena Nikolayenko, Professor, Political Science, Fordham University

Gender and State Repression in Belarus

Friday September 30

2pm to 3pm (New York time)

European Union Studies Center,
CUNY Graduate Center
365 5th Avenue, New York
Room 5203, Ralph Bunche Institute for International Studies.

RSVP required. For Zoom participants, register with the link here
For In-Person participants, email mara.lazda@bcc.cuny to register. To enter the Grad Center, identification, proof of vaccination are required, or negative PCR test results received within 7 days.

We ask that participants read the paper in advance. Please email mara.lazda@bcc.cuny.edu for the paper. At the workshop, Prof. Nikolayenko will have a brief presentation, after which attendees are invited to ask questions based on the paper and presentation.

We look forward to seeing you next week. Please also find the full schedule for the fall here.
