

2023 Policy History Conference Call for Papers

Discussion published by Roxane Barwick on Thursday, September 29, 2022

The Institute for Political History, the Journal of Policy History and the newly established Arizona State University Center for American Institutions are hosting the Policy History Conference in Columbus, Ohio from Wednesday, June 7 to Friday, June 9, 2023.

New York Times columnist Thomas B. Edsall will give the keynote address at the Thursday Plenary.

The Wednesday Plenary, "Environmental Policy", will feature

Adam Rome, Professor of Environment and Sustainability, University at Buffalo

Bart Elmore, Associate Professor of History, Ohio State University

Jennifer Eaglin, Associate Professor of History, Ohio State University

We are currently accepting panel and paper proposals on all topics regarding American political and policy history, political development, and comparative historical analysis. Complete sessions, including two or three presenters with chair/commentator(s), and individual paper proposals are welcome. Participants may only appear once as a presenter in the program.

Submit paper proposals here

Submit panel proposals here

Paula Baker and Christopher Loss serve as program chairs for the 2023 Policy History Conference.

Contact Info:

Donald T. Critchlow

Director ASU Center for American Institutions

Editor Journal of Policy History

Contact Email:

policyhistory@gmail.com

URL:

<http://jph.asu.edu>