

Please Join Me in Supporting this Valuable Resource

Discussion published by Marshall Poe on Wednesday, November 30, 2022

Dear H-Net Subscribers,

H-Net has been vital for my research for over 20 years. It's remarkably useful for making contacts with scholars and seeing what's happening my field. I look forward to getting the alerts every day. H-Net has also been of vital importance for the New Books Network, which I founded and run. Using it, we have had great success in recruiting academics to host NBN podcasts. I'm not sure the NBN could have grown the way it has without H-Net and all the scholars on it. I urge you to donate to this great resource.

This year H-Net is working to raise $35,000 to help support new platform development for the H-Net Commons, H-Net Job Guide, and H-Net Reviews. Would you donate today to help us reach that goal? Your generosity will make it possible for H-Net to provide the services academics value on more technologically up-to-date, mobile-friendly, platforms responsive to user experience feedback provided by H-Net editors and subscribers.

You can help us build a better future for H-Net and its subscribers by making a gift today. Subscribers like you make it possible for H-Net to not only continue, but to improve and expand upon, these vital services--they couldn't do it without you. Thank you for supporting H-Net: Humanities and Social Sciences Online!

To donate by credit card online, please follow this link to the Support H-Net page: <https://networks.h-net.org/support-h-net>

Or send a check payable to H-Net:

H-Net: Humanities & Social Sciences Online
Old Horticulture, Room 141H
506 East Circle Drive
East Lansing, MI 48824
USA

Marshall Poe

Russian historian and founder of the New Books Network