

Recorded session: Cultivating Partnerships in Digital Humanities: Strategies, Tips, and Lessons Learned

Discussion published by Dominique Daniel on Tuesday, January 24, 2023

Recording from the November 14, 2022 session of the ACRL University Libraries Section Professional Development Committee: Cultivating Partnerships in Digital Humanities: Strategies, Tips, and Lessons Learned.

How can librarians collaborate effectively to promote cross-disciplinary scholarship and teaching in digital humanities? What are examples of spaces, activities, and programs developed cooperatively by librarians and digital humanities colleagues? What are strategies for cultivating meaningful partnerships to advance interdisciplinary work? How can librarians and digital humanities colleagues work together to develop and promote cross-campus conversations among scholars in the humanities and social sciences? This session will include a panel discussion exploring partnerships between the library and digital humanities (DH) colleagues at Michigan State University (MSU). The panelists will describe collaborative work in developing spaces, programs, outreach, and events to connect scholars from across campus engaging in digital scholarship in the humanities and social sciences.
