Announcement: Enterprise and Society in 2022

Discussion published by PJ Neal on Friday, December 23, 2022

2022 has been a wonderful year for the association’s journal, Enterprise & Society. The journal has received a record number of submissions: 130! and has published a total of 17 OA articles. The most cited article in 2022 was BHC’s past president Neil Rollings’ “The Vast and Unsolved Enigma of Power”: Business History and Business Power, which is available (#openaccess) here: https://doi.org/10.1017/eso.2021.53. The most read article in the last 12 has been “From the Margins to the Core of Haute Couture: The Entrepreneurial Journey of Coco Chanel” by Gino Cattani, Mariachiara Colucci, and Simone Ferriani.

Editor Andrew Popp has thanked associate editors, the editorial board, all authors, and all reviewers on Twitter (see below), and more comments and acknowledgments will be published in the upcoming editorial.

Posting in the first person for once, I remain honored and excited to get a chance to do this job, to help authors shape their work and the field, to take things forward. I want to express deep gratitude to all our authors, our reviewers (who will be acknowledged ... — Enterprise&Society (@EntandSoc) December 15, 2022

The full thread can be read here, or on Twitter.

Here is a list of all OA (17) articles published #firstview in 2022 in Enterprise & Society:

Follow Enterprise & Society and the Business History Conference on Twitter, or on LinkedIn and Facebook where we post about new research in business history.

From the BHC, we wish everyone a restful holiday season and a happy New Year!