Location:

Portugal

Subject Fields:

Sociology, Social Sciences

The ebook Curriculum autonomy policies: International trends, tensions and transformations, published by CICS.NOVA - Interdisciplinary Centre of Social Sciences (NOVA FCSH, Portugal) and with the support of the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, is already available in full open access.

The work is coordinated by the Portuguese researchers Sílvia de Almeida, Francisco Sousa and Maria Figueiredo, and is based on papers presented at the International Seminar “Curriculum Autonomy Policies in Europe: Trends, Tensions & Transformations”, held between January 25-26, 2019, at the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation, Lisbon. In addition to integrating a set of communications presented at that event, this work includes texts by authors who, not having participated in the seminar, have carried out research on the topic under discussion.

The full ebook can be read and downloaded here.
