

Graduate and Advanced Undergraduate Colloquium at the University of Toledo in Ohio

Discussion published by Chelsea Griffis on Friday, January 20, 2023

Type:

Call for Papers

Date:

February 20, 2023

Location:

Ohio, United States

Subject Fields:

African History / Studies, American History / Studies, Asian History / Studies, European History / Studies, Latin American and Caribbean History / Studies

The History Department at the University of Toledo invites upper-level undergraduate and graduate students to submit a proposal to present their original research at our History Colloquium to be held in-person on Friday, March 24, 2023. Students who are working on capstone projects, senior theses, MA theses, or doctoral work are especially encouraged to apply.

Presentations should be 10 to 15 minutes long. We are interested in historical research on any topic from any geographical region or time period.

One page abstracts--including your name, contact information, and the title of your presentation--should be sent to Dr. Chelsea Griffis, UT, at chelsea.griffis@utoledo.edu. While individual papers will be considered, submission of complete panels is strongly encouraged. Abstracts must be submitted by the deadline of Wednesday, February 17 and will be responded to by Monday, February 28.

Contact Info:

Chelsea Griffis

Associate Lecturer, History

University of Toledo

Contact Email:

chelsea.griffis@utoledo.edu