

Struggles in the Concrete - Architecture, Architectural History. and the Marxist Tradition

Announcement published by Mark Crinson on Wednesday, January 25, 2023

Type:

Conference

Date:

April 27, 2023 to April 28, 2023

Location:

United Kingdom

Subject Fields:

Architecture and Architectural History

This two-day conference aims to sample how the work of architectural historians, and contemporary architectural scholarship more broadly, relates to the analytical categories and concepts belonging to the Marxist tradition, and to open out new lines of research and theoretical enquiry. There are four themes (ideological formations, labour and its histories, infrastructure and environment, and building the racial regime of modernity) nine speakers, three respondents in a roundtable, and an artist's film viewing. The conference is free and no registration is required.

Contact Info:

The conference is organised by Luisa Lorenza Corna (Honorary Reserach Fellow) and Mark Crinson (Professor of Architectural History) and is supported by the Architecture Space and Society Centre at Birkbeck (University of London).
