

Indian Warfare: Historical and Archaeological Perspectives

Announcement published by Grant Weller on Tuesday, January 16, 2018

Type:

Lecture

Date:

January 24, 2018

Location:

Colorado, United States

Subject Fields:

American History / Studies, Archaeology, Indigenous Studies, Military History, Native American History / Studies

The Rocky Mountain Military Affairs Society presents a free public lecture, Indian Warfare: Historical and Archaeological Perspectives, by Dr. Bruce Lutz, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, CSU-Pueblo. Dr. Bruce Lutz joined the faculty at Colorado State University-Pueblo in 2014. He received his doctoral degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1972, and since 1965 has done archaeological and ethnographic research in the Alaskan Arctic. He is the author of Archaeological Excavations near Unalakleet, Alaska, and numerous other works. His interests also include indigenous cultures throughout North America.

7:00 pm, Wednesday, 24 January 2018

Meeting Room, Rockrimmon Library

832 Village Center Dr., Colorado Springs, CO

Contact Info:

Prof Grant Weller

Department of History, Political Science, Philosophy, and Geography

Colorado State University-Pueblo

2200 Bonforte Blvd

Pueblo CO 81001

Contact Email:

grant.weller@csupueblo.edu

URL:

<http://www.rmmas.org/Welcome.html>