

Researching Women and Gender at the Library: Women and the American Civil War - March 21 - Webinar

Discussion published by Elizabeth Novara on Tuesday, March 14, 2023

Manuscript Division specialist Michelle Krowl will share examples from Library of Congress collections that document the experiences of women during the American Civil War, and suggest search strategies for locating resources on women in the Civil War era.

The Researching Women and Gender at the Library series engages attendees with quarterly virtual presentations on researching women's history and gender studies using Library of Congress collections and resources. The session will not be recorded.
