Call for panelists: Workshop on teaching “The Work of Freedom” presented by the Committee on Community Colleges, OAH

The Committee on Community Colleges for the Organization of American Historians is hosting a teaching-oriented workshop for the 2019 OAH meeting in Philadelphia (April 4-6). The theme for the meeting is “The Work of Freedom.”

Do you have a creative lesson/unit that focuses on freedom?

Areas could include, but are not limited to: Hispanics, African Americans, Jewish Americans, Asian Americans, the LGBT community, Arab Americans, labor organizers, or advocates for the disabled.

Our panel will include 3-4 presenters with approximately 45 minutes each, q & a, and a lunch with a keynote speaker.

The panel is open to community college faculty, including part-time and contingent faculty.

We are accepting proposals for papers until February 23, 2018.

Please forward your 200 to 300-word proposal and CV to:
