

CFP: 2017 Digital Humanities Area, Southwest Popular/American Culture Association Conference, Feb. 15-18, 2017

Announcement published by David Oberhelman on Tuesday, August 23, 2016

Type:

Call for Papers

Date:

November 1, 2016

Location:

New Mexico, United States

Subject Fields:

Digital Humanities, Popular Culture Studies, American History / Studies, Graduate Studies

Please join us for the 38th annual conference of the Southwest Popular/American Culture Association, February 15-18, 2017, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel and Conference Center in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Digital Humanities (DH) is “a nexus of fields within which scholars use computing technologies to investigate the kinds of questions that are traditional to the humanities, or . . . ask traditional kinds of humanities-oriented questions about computing technologies.” (Kathleen Fitzpatrick, “The Humanities, Done Digitally.”) The DH area is seeking papers (approximately 15 minutes in length) that explore the practical, pedagogical, and theoretical issues stemming from the use of Web technologies and other computing techniques and applications to enhance the study of the humanities, particularly popular and American culture studies. What are some of the exciting DH projects being developed today, and how are they redefining the way we approach popular culture? How is DH changing popular culture studies in (and outside of) academe? Possible topics include, but are not limited to:

- Digital applications in popular culture studies and related fields such as literature, history, music, art, graphic or digital arts, film, television, Web and other new media, gaming, etc.
- Creation and curation of digital resources for popular culture
- DH and the Southwest
- Interactive technology, images, audio/video, text and non-text based DH projects
- DH and smartphones, GIS, 3-D printing, cloud computing, and other emerging technologies
- DH and the future of the humanities or popular culture studies
- DH and the classroom/academic curriculum
