

CFP: Crossroads of the Transatlantic Humanities Student Conference at Nova Southeastern University

Discussion published by Yvette Fuentes on Saturday, November 3, 2018

Type:

Call for Papers

Date:

January 18, 2019

Location:

Florida, United States

Subject Fields:

Humanities, Contemporary History, Languages, Philosophy, Literature

This conference builds on the concept of South Florida as a crossroads of the Transatlantic world and asks students to develop presentations that explore the humanities and the convergence of cultures, values, and ideas not only in South Florida but throughout the Americas. The Humanities Student Conference strives to incorporate diverse perspectives and topics from a range of humanities fields including history, philosophy, literature, languages, cultural theory, and the arts. We also invite papers in legal studies, political science, national security, communication, conflict resolution studies, and international relations when approached with a humanities lens. Undergraduate and graduate students from all academic institutions are invited to submit abstracts of 150 words or less to Dr. Andrea Shaw Nevins andrshaw@nova.edu no later than January 18th, 2019.

Possible topics include the following:

- Law-making in the Americas
- Ethics and national security
- Historicizing national security
- Expanding the boundaries of genre and medium
- Reshaping transatlantic studies through digital humanities
- Informing transatlantic studies through interdisciplinarity
- The politics of language, translation, and code-switching
- Post-colonialism/Imperialism
- Invasions of Ideology
- Shifting borders, permanent boundaries
- Conflict representations in media
- Mobility and crisis in the Americas
- Exchanges between the Old World and New World
