

Pickering & Chatto Perspectives on Early America

Blog Post published by John Daniel Saillant on Wednesday, June 25, 2014

Professor Craig Thompson Friend (North Carolina State University) and Professor Stacey M. Robertson (Bradley University) are delighted to announce that they are now the series editors for the Perspectives on Early America series, published with Pickering & Chatto. Information on the series and publisher can be found here: www.pickeringchatto.com/pea

This series offers fresh interpretations of the people, events and influences that shaped America during the Colonial, Revolutionary and Early National periods. This era has been reappraised in recent academic thinking, providing new ideas and a shifting perspective on dynamic world events. Titles in the series will focus on aspects of the social, cultural, political and imperial history of the Americas and the Atlantic world.

We welcome submissions for book proposals from established scholars and first-time authors alike. To discuss your ideas regarding a monograph, edited essay volume or primary source collection in this subject area, please email us at craig_friend@ncsu.edu and smr@fsmail.bradley.edu, cc'ing the commissioning editor, Janka Romero at jromero@pickeringchatto.co.uk. We look forward to hearing from you!
