

EDRA49 Call for Proposals, "Social Equity by Design"

Announcement published by Jeremy Wells on Monday, October 2, 2017

Type:

Call for Papers

Date:

October 16, 2017

Location:

Oklahoma, United States

Subject Fields:

Architecture and Architectural History, Health and Health Care, Historic Preservation, Urban Design and Planning, Human Rights

Every year, for almost 50 years, socially-motivated professionals and researchers in the environmental design fields have come together during the EDRA conference with a shared belief in the importance of creating environments that are supportive of all people. Through paper presentations, symposia, workshops, intensives, site visits and open discussions, we seek to investigate how to design environments that make communities safer and more enjoyable — more equitable.

In 2018, EDRA will be in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma June 6 to 9 for the 49th iteration of our conference. EDRA49 invites researchers and practitioners to share their knowledge of and best practices for promoting greater social equity in our world today and in the future. We welcome submissions in all environmental design research and practice areas and allied professions.

Possible tracks include:

- Designing accessible environments
- Housing design and policy
- Cross-cultural placemaking: Fostering diversity through community design
- Resilient community planning and design
- Economic development & community revitalization
- Participatory design strategies
- Emerging design tools: Data, simulation, and virtual design
- Education design and policy
- Healthcare design
- Historic preservation, heritage, and the historic environment
