

Call for Book Reviewers

Discussion published by Joshua Jeffers on Monday, February 11, 2019

Hello and Good Afternoon H-Early America subscribers,

My name is Josh Jeffers, and I am your friendly book review editor here at H-Early America. I am looking to commission several reviews over the next few months, and I have been building a database of potential books for review. I am also in the process of updating the list of reviewers. So if you are interested in reviewing books, please send a CV and brief bio to jojeffers@csudh.edu. NOTE, I am starting from a clean slate, so please send your information even if you have done so in the past to be a reviewer.

Also, while H-Early America does not accept requests to review specific books, please feel free to send along any suggestions regarding historiographical trends or areas of inquiry that are perhaps new or under-represented in the historiography of early America and for which reviews of books would be especially helpful in, to steal a word from Karin Wulf's recent essay in The Magazine for the NEH, expanding our understanding of the "vastness" of early America.

Thank you and I look forward to hearing from you.

Best, Josh
