Subject Fields:

Public Policy, Political Science, Political History / Studies

The International Journal of Political Activism and Engagement (IJPAE) compiles theoretical and empirical works that explore how politically active and socially-engaged citizens can impact and enlarge public welfare activities and socioeconomic resources. Examining outreach and engagement initiatives through methods such as public policy, urban development, and digital platforms, the journal seeks to create greater transparency between the government and its citizens to promote community development and develop public accountability for the overall benefit of society.
