- The National Archives of Australia has records of Australia's security, intelligence and law enforcement as well as defence administration, the forces, and service personnel. Not all of the records are available digitally, but many are.

Collections of links and other resources

- A Guide to World War I Materials compiled by the LoC.
- The Western Front Association has a lot of good information on a wide range of WW1 topics and events. The WFA has also put together a separate site for the centennial with additional resources.
- List of WW1 books; not necessarily scholarly sources, but may be good further reading.
- WW1 Historical Association has a number of useful links for finding information on individual soldiers who served in WW1.
- Annual scholarly journal published by the International Society for First World War Studies; abstracts can be viewed online for free.
- U.S. National Archives list of military resources, includes both external sites and articles published by the Archives.
