Faculty Fellow in Irish History, Center for Irish and Irish-American Studies New York University Arts and Science

The Center for Irish and Irish-American Studies at New York University invites applications for an appointment as Faculty Fellow in Irish History to begin on September 1, 2020, pending budgetary and administrative approval. We seek candidates with a Ph.D. in History who can serve and expand the areas of historical study covered by our curriculum at the undergraduate and graduate level. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. no earlier than September 1, 2015. The course load will be three courses per year and the appointment will be renewable annually for a term of up to three years.

Candidates should submit a letter of application, a curriculum vitae, an article-length writing sample, and three letters of recommendation via Interfolio apply.interfolio.com/67892. The Center is committed to building inclusive classroom experiences for a diverse student body. We request that applicants include a paragraph in their letter of application explaining how diversity figures into their past, present, and future teaching, research, and community engagement.

Applications should be submitted no later than January 17, 2020. Please address any questions to Dr. Miriam Nyhan, Associate Director, Glucksman Ireland House.

The Faculty of Arts and Science (FAS) at NYU is at the heart of a leading research university that spans the globe. We seek scholars of the highest caliber, who embody the diversity of the United States as well as the global society in which we live. We strongly encourage applications from women, racial and ethnic minorities, and other individuals who are under-represented in the profession, across color, creed, race, ethnic and national origin, physical ability, gender and sexual identity, or any other legally protected basis. NYU affirms the value of differing perspectives on the world as we strive to build the strongest possible university with the widest reach. To learn more
