

2nd Call: Teaching African-American History in the #BlackLivesMatter Era (OAH 2021)

Announcement published by David Hamilton Golland on Wednesday, October 16, 2019

Type:

Call for Papers

Date:

December 1, 2019

Location:

Illinois, United States

Subject Fields:

African American History / Studies, American History / Studies, Human Rights, Ethnic History / Studies, Teaching and Learning

I am developing a proposal for a roundtable for the 2021 meeting of the Organization of American Historians, April 15-18, 2021. The participants can include educators at all levels (K-12, undergraduate, graduate) from multiple institution types (HBCU, SLAC, R1, regional public, charter, etc.). Teaching interests can include any era (or geographical region) of African-American history, broadly constructed.

Please send me your name, title & institution, contact information, and a brief statement (200-word max.) outlining your experience teaching African-American history in the past few years.

Contact Info:

David Hamilton Golland, PhD

Associate Professor of History and Coordinator of Humanities

Governors State University

Contact Email:

dgolland@govst.edu

URL:

<http://www.davidgolland.com>