

Help with a course on Darwin

Discussion published by Justin Everett on Wednesday, June 24, 2020

Hello All,

I am teaching a course called "Darwin's Legacy" which I am teaching exclusively online for the first time. Because I had used several films in the prior iteration of the course, and because of both the epidemic and the racial justice movement, I find myself almost completely redesigning the course this summer. Previously I had focused on Darwin, scientific racism, eugenics, and transhumanism. While these all concern both environmental and social justice issues, I would like to shift to a more contemporary focus, so I am reaching out to this group for suggestions that will allow me to incorporate these two contemporary issues. Any readings or course unit suggestions would be much appreciated!
