

Open Call for Editors and Contributors for The Digital Orientalist

Announcement published by James Morris on Tuesday, June 30, 2020

Type:

Call for Volunteers

Date:

July 1, 2020 to August 20, 2020

Subject Fields:

African History / Studies, Asian History / Studies, Chinese History / Studies, Digital Humanities, Middle East History / Studies

Digital magazine and arm the American Oriental Society, The Digital Orientalist, is happy to announce its annual open call for editors and contributors. As we continue to expand our publication and readership, we are also looking to enter into new fields and as such we are eagerly looking for several new editors for the next academic year (2020-2021) from the following (or related) fields:

1. African Studies.
2. Central Asian Studies.
3. Indian Studies.
4. Korean Studies.
5. Middle Eastern Studies.
6. Mongolian Studies.
7. Sinology.
8. South East Asian Studies.
9. Oceania or Pacific Island Studies.
10. Persia or Iranian Studies.

These editorial positions will be particularly attractive to graduate students and early career researchers, but are also open to senior academics. Editors will be expected to contribute 5-6 short posts (up to 1,000 words each) between September 2020 and June 2021. In addition to new editors, we are also looking for people who are able to contribute guest posts or series of guests posts on the Digital Humanities in General, Islamic Studies, Japanology, Syriac Studies or any of the above noted fields. If you have something interesting to say and you wish to reach an expanding global audience then do not hesitate to get in contact.

Interested parties should send a CV to Dr. James Harry Morris MTheol, PhD, FRAS (University of Tsukuba) at james@digitalorientalist.com

Contact Email:

james@digitalorientalist.com

URL:

<https://digitalorientalist.com/>