

Student and Staff Research Conference 'Between Tradition and Innovation: New Research at London Met'

Announcement published by Klaus Fischer on Wednesday, July 8, 2020

Type:

Conference

Date:

July 14, 2020 to July 15, 2020

Location:

United Kingdom

Subject Fields:

Digital Humanities, Psychology, Social Sciences, Teaching and Learning, Women's & Gender History / Studies

The conference will feature papers from the six Schools of the University, allocated to a 'Social and Creative Panel' and an 'ICT and Science Panel', in the form of 20-minute talks, three-minute lightning talks and poster presentations in break-out rooms. It will feature topics as varied as the use of digital media in Vietnamese political dissent; women's experiences of victim blame following sexual violence; understanding how cells change in the immune system; and the application of the Michael Chekhov technique to drama-based pedagogy for teacher training. The conference is framed by two longer keynote talks from Psychology (ASD/ADHD) and Science (virology) respectively.

The event will take place online, hosted by Professor Donna Whitehead, Deputy Vice-Chancellor at the University and Professor Don MacRaid, Pro Vice-Chancellor for Research and Knowledge Exchange. It has been organised by the Student and Staff Liaison Forum, which brings together research students and staff to discuss academic and research community matters, in co-operation with the Graduate School, the Research Office and the Postgraduate Research Society.

Klaus Fischer, Head of the Graduate School, said: "The research culture at London Met is thriving, and this conference is one of a number of recent initiatives to strengthen it further. This conference will provide an excellent opportunity for staff and PGR students to share and showcase their research with other curious minds within our community. PGR students, in particular, will be able to develop their experience of presenting their research design, analysis, or findings to critical scrutiny, which will be all-important as they develop in their academic careers. We're looking forward to engaging with such an interesting diversity of topics over the two-day period."

. Awards will be presented in a number of categories including:

- Best poster
- Best lightning talk
- Best student paper
- Most engaging student paper
- Best link to the conference topic (Between Tradition and Innovation)

The conference is open to all staff and students at London Met and external guests.
