IIAS Newsletter 70 - Central and Inner Asia: New Challenges for Independent Research

<http://www.ias.nl/the-newsletter/newsletter-70-spring-2015>

The study of Central and Inner Asia faces a multitude of challenges, brought about by the break-up of the Soviet Union, the emergence of new states, the rise of China, the development of new national narratives, and a diminishing interest from Europe and the United States. This edition of the Focus addresses some of the problems, and proposes new policies to promote the proper understanding of a region that, to many, lies in a disregarded area on the map of the world.
