

Archie K. Davis Fellowships from The North Caroliniana Society, 2021

Discussion published by Jason Tomberlin on Wednesday, November 25, 2020

The North Caroliniana Society offers on a competitive basis Archie K. Davis Fellowships to assist scholars in gaining access to resources contributing to knowledge of the state's past. As of 2020, the four or five awards will be in the $4000-$5000 range to cover travel and subsistence expenses while fellows conduct research in North Caroliniana. In evaluating proposals, the Society considers the qualifications of applicants; individual need; quantity, quality, and location of sources; length of research stay; plans for publication or other "product"; and, especially, potential of subject to advance among citizens of the state knowledge and understanding of their own history and culture. Applications are due by March 1, 2021. Visit www.ncsociety.org for specific guidelines.
