European Journal of American Culture 39.3 is out now
(Special Issue: ‘Project Apollo and After’)

Discussion published by Tessa Mathieson on Friday, December 18, 2020

Intellect is thrilled to announce that the European Journal of American Culture 39.3 is out now!

Special Issue: ‘Project Apollo and After’

To find out more about the special issue and journal, click here >>
https://www.intellectbooks.com/european-journal-of-american-culture

Aims & Scope

The European Journal of American Culture is a peer-reviewed journal that aims to encompass the evolution of America and its culture. It is particularly interested in how the visual arts, politics, literature, history and media engage with cultural issues. EJAC aims to present a fresh perspective on American culture in all its forms.

Issue 39.3

Editorial

JOHN WILLS

Introduction

Special Issue introduction: Project Apollo and after
KAREN PATRICIA HEATH

Articles

‘See your spaceport’: Project Apollo and the origins of Kennedy Space Center tourism, 1963–67
EMILY A. MARGOLIS

Curating the space race, celebrating cooperation: Exhibiting space technology during 1970s détente
THOMAS ELLIS

Prayers from on high: Religious expression in outer space during the Apollo era, 1968–76
KARI EDWARDS

The American spaceport and the power of cultural imaginaries
JEFFREY S. NESBIT