1st Biannual Conference of the Center for José Martí Studies Affiliate at the University of Tampa

Jan. 28-30, 2021

With the desire to remain true to the Center for José Martí Studies Affiliate's mission during these pandemic times, the Center is organizing a virtual conference, "Envisaging José Martí in 2021: History, Culture and Education," to gather teacher-scholars from multiple disciplines who are currently engaged in new scholarly, creative or educational work. This conference is an outgrowth of the 2019 Summer Institute and we look forward to seeing how the many projects and initiatives started there have evolved and prospered.

Conference Objective: The overall objective is to share established and ongoing scholarship, as well as creative and pedagogical projects related to the Center's focus, and provide a platform and stimulate discussion regarding potential future projects and directions. The Center's interests include, but are not limited to, the humanities, social sciences creative arts, education, and digital approaches to these and other related disciplines.

Through the conference's presentations, breakout sessions, roundtable workshops and many, interspersed networking opportunities, we hope that together we will create synergy and innovative ideas about potential projects and/or collaborative work.
