

European Biennale of local History

Announcement published by Jean BOUTIER on Friday, July 30, 2021

Type:

Event

Date:

September 10, 2021 to September 12, 2021

Location:

France

Subject Fields:

Modern European History / Studies, Public History, Rural History / Studies, Contemporary History, Local History

The first European Biennale of local history to be held at Tulle, Corrèze from 10-12 Sept. 2021 explores the contribution of territories and local actors to the construction of our societies in a Europe open to the world. This first edition is devoted to The 1950s in Europe, with a focus on themes of economic transformation, the modernisation of agriculture and rural society, mass political movements, the illusion of women's emancipation, the revolution in sports, or the development of popular music and new forms of entertainment. Three days of debates, conferences, round tables, exhibitions, film screenings, regional history book fairs, will feature interventions by historians, personalities from the political, cultural and professional worlds from different European countries. The event combines scientific rigour, the democratisation of knowledge and citizen participation.

Contact Info:

Jean Boutier, Professor, Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales, President of the European Biennale of local History

Contact Email:

jean.boutier@ehess.fr

URL:

<http://www.biennale-tulle.fr>