TOC, Intelligence and National Security vol. 36 no. 5 (2021)

Discussion published by Jennifer Finn on Wednesday, August 11, 2021

TOC, Intelligence and National Security vol. 36 no. 5 (2021), accessible here: https://www.tandfonline.com/toc/fint20/36/5?nav=tocList

Research Articles:

Understanding the complexity of intelligence problems
Christiaan Menkveld
Pages: 621-641

Stay-behind networks and interim flexible strategy: the ‘Gladio’ case and US covert intervention in Italy in the Cold War
Francesco Cacciatore
Pages: 642-659

Strategic intelligence practice in the Australian intelligence community: evolution, constraints and progress
Patrick F. Walsh & Mark Harrison MBE
Pages: 660-675

The Security Intelligence Agencies in New Zealand: evolution, challenges and progress
Alexander Gillespie & Claire Breen
Pages: 676-695

Intelligence oversight systems in Uganda: challenges and prospects
Asiimwe Solomon Muchwa
Pages: 696-708

Spy time: the hunt for chronophages
David Omand
Pages: 709-720

Robust-satisficing ethics in intelligence
Yakov Ben-Haim
Pages: 721-736

Review Articles:

Russian covert operations: using history to establish motivations and bounds
by Scott Jasper, Washington, DC, Georgetown University Press, 2020, x+214 pp., $32.95 (Hardback), ISBN 9781626167971
Kevin P. Riehle
Pages: 737-744
Nikolay Dolgopolov: the storyteller of Soviet intelligence history
Filip Kovacevic
Pages: 745-753

‘Next to a battle lost, the greatest misery is a battle gained’: the Battle of Waterloo - myth and reality
Jeff Bridoux
Pages: 754-770

Book Reviews:

The targeter: my life in the CIA, hunting for terrorists, and challenging the White House
Philip Giurlando
Pages: 771-774

Ernest Bevin: Labour’s Churchill
J. Graham Jones
Pages: 774-776

Anglo-European intelligence cooperation
Christian Kaunert
Pages: 776-778

RAW: a history of India’s covert operations
Ryan Shaffer
Pages: 778-779