

Ecumenica Call For Papers

Announcement published by Alicia Corts on Monday, August 30, 2021

Type:

Call for Papers

Date:

September 30, 2021

Location:

Florida, United States

Subject Fields:

Religious Studies and Theology, Theatre & Performance History / Studies, South Asian History / Studies, Women's & Gender History / Studies, Philosophy

ECUMENICA: PERFORMANCE AND RELIGION Scholars and artists are invited to submit essays, artist statements, interviews, book reviews, and performance reviews to Ecumenica, a peer-reviewed journal published by Penn State University Press. In the vein of performance studies, we welcome scholarship on all sorts of theatrical performance and performance art and also on the activity of religion, including ritual, pilgrimage, festival, and other such devotional and creative practices. We also welcome work on relevant theory and religious concepts. Ecumenica attends to the combination of creativity, religion, and spirituality in expressive practice, preferring no particular form of creative expression and privileging no particular religious tradition. The journal's very aim is to consider the variety of modes in which creative and religious impulses might be realized. Ecumenica's interdisciplinary premise welcomes all critical approaches to matters of performance and religion. The journal accepts submissions throughout the year. Submissions that are received by September 30 can be considered for the Spring 2022 issue.

Authors are encouraged to submit work using this link to Editorial Manager:
<https://www.editorialmanager.com/ecumenica/default.aspx>

More information is available at <http://www.ecumenicajournal.org>

Contact Info:

Alicia Corts

Assistant Editor

editor@ecumenicajournal.org

Contact Email:

editor@ecumenicajournal.org

URL:

<http://www.ecumenicajournal.org>