

War & Emotions Symposium 17-18 Sept 2015

Announcement published by Deborah Tout-Smith on Friday, September 4, 2015

Type:

Symposium

Date:

September 17, 2015 to September 18, 2015

Location:

Australia

Subject Fields:

Holocaust, Genocide, and Memory Studies, Intellectual History, Military History, Music and Music History, Public History

Time is fast running out to register for the 'War & Emotions' symposium
17-18 September 2015, Melbourne Museum

The speakers will include some of the most outstanding historians on the impacts of World War I in our time:

Keynotes Dr Michael Roper, University of Essex and Dr Tracey Loughran, Cardiff University; Professors Joy Damousi, Alistair Thomson, Peter Stanley, Andrea Witcomb, Bruce Scates and Barry Conyngham; Dr Marina Larsson, Dr Bart Ziino, Dr Kerry Neale and Dr Ross McMullin.

The symposium will explore new perspectives and understandings of the emotional and physical impacts of World War I, and how the war is remembered today. It will build on the themes of the highly-acclaimed World War I: Love & Sorrow exhibition at Melbourne Museum, which follows eight personal stories through the chronology of 1914-18 and into the long post-war years, revealing the tragic consequences of the war.

A broad range of delegates will contribute to lively and challenging discussions, including scholars, students, curators, veterans and families impacted by war.

The two-day symposium includes free entry to Melbourne Museum and the Love & Sorrow exhibition, refreshments, and an evening reception for speakers and delegates.

Contact Info:

Deborah Tout-Smith, Senior Curator, Museum, Victoria, Australia

Contact Email:

dtoutsm@museum.vic.gov.au

URL:

<http://museumvictoria.com.au/melbournemuseum/whatson/war-and-emotions-symposium/>