Command, Control, and Communication: Scholarly Perspectives on Seventy Years of Nuclear Weapons History

November 18, 2015 at the National Atomic Testing Museum, Las Vegas, NV

Scheduled to coincide with the National Communication Association's 101st Annual Convention, this event will be open to the public and showcase a range of scholarship focused on the relationship between nuclear weapons and communication. The aim of the event is to not only showcase the work of scholars already engaged with topics related to nuclear weapons, but also to encourage new scholarship on the same.

The cost for registration is $10 and will be used to help cover food expenses.

If you are currently registered for NCA, you may add on registration for this pre-conference event through the NCA portal <http://www.natcom.org/registration/> under the "Additional Fees" heading.

If you are not attending NCA but would still like to attend the pre-conference event, please visit the event website at <http://cccnevada.net/> to find our more information about registration. Any inquires about the process for registration can be emailed to Joe Izaguirre at izaguir2@illinois.edu.

We hope to see you there.
