Event

Date:

November 18, 2021

Subject Fields:

Diplomacy and International Relations, Government and Public Service, Graduate Studies, Public Health, Public Policy

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought into stark relief the interactions between climate change and global health and revealed the dangers of 'silozation' of these issues into different conceptual frameworks and governance regimes.

On November 18, the panel on The Ecological Question in Global Health will explore how the understanding of the environment and public health can be bridged, and how these challenges are being addressed especially in India and China. The panelists include:

- Arunabha Ghosh, Founder-CEO, The Council on Energy, Environment and Water;
- Lyle Fearnley, Assistant Professor of Anthropology, Singapore University of Technology and Design,
- Yifei Li, Assistant Professor of Environmental Studies, NYU Shanghai, and
- Mridula Paul, Postgraduate Researcher at the Department of Geography, University of Northumbria, UK
