

RSS Feeds and the H-Net Commons

Page published by Douglas Priest on Wednesday, July 3, 2013

Here are links to some important information about using RSS to feed content to your mail program or browser. .

- What is RSS? How does it work?
- How Email really works.
- How to:
  - Add RSS to Safari.
  - Add RSS to Various Mail Programs.
  - View the H-Net Commons in Your Outlook 2007.
  - View the H-Net Commons in Your Outlook 2010.
  - Add RSS to Your Thunderbird Mail Program.

You can always subscribe to an RSS feed from your browser window (look for the orange RSS icon in the address bar or on the page and click on it) or in any of dozens of free news aggregators like bloglines. You can also get feeds on your Android, iPhone, or Windows tablet or phone.

How Do I Get H-Net Feeds?

Find the RSS Feeds beneath the right-side menu on any network front page, click the RSS icon next to the option from the type of content you want to receive via RSS feed for that network. You can choose the network's Discussions, Reviews, Media, or Blogs.

You are here: Home > All Networks > H-Urban

All Networks People About Donate Contact Help f t in

Search H-Net

H-URBAN

Home Discussions Reviews Resources Links Blogs

Search H-Urban

WELCOME

We are a moderated multi-disciplinary forum for discussion and dissemination of scholarship on urban history and urban studies. As a member of H-NET (Humanities and Social Sciences Online), H-Urban has no geographical or chronological boundaries. Thus, we welcome the involvement of scholars, professionals, and graduate students who are interested in urban places and processes across the globe and in all eras.

Recent Content

DISCUSSION published by Howard Spodek on Sunday, May 15, 2016

Seeking scholars studying wide arrays of forces active in shaping single cities

Howard Spodek

spodek@tamms.edu

variety of forces interacting in shaping the city's transformations. I am planning ten chapters; the first seven are complete in draft.

1. The Municipal Corporation
2. The Regional Planning Authority
3. The leading local planners
4. Efforts at historic preservation

READ MORE BOOKMARK THIS 0 REPLIES

DISCUSSION published by Matthew Davies on Thursday, May 12, 2016

CFP: Cities and disasters: urban adaptability and resilience in history

CALL FOR PAPERS

Cities and disasters: urban adaptability and resilience in history

Institute of Historical Research, University of London

3-4 November 2016

H-Urban

» View
Network Staff List
All Content

Sponsors

H-Urban Resources

About this Network
Advisory Board
Editors

Teaching Center
H-Urban List Discussion Logs
Search all H-Net Logs
Help Desk
How to post in H-Urban
Network Publishing Calendar
Write to the Editors

RSS Feeds

- Discussions
- Reviews
- Media
- Blogs

Subscribe to this network
to join the discussion

