Call for Papers: ‘Chaos’ as a productive space of negotiation: Turkey’s diplomacy in the MENA region mobilizing the legacy of the Ottoman Empire

Discussion published by Nicola Melis on Sunday, February 6, 2022

We invite applications for our panel ‘Chaos’ as a productive space of negotiation: Turkey’s diplomacy in the MENA region mobilizing the legacy of the Ottoman Empire
Along with Chiara Pagano (University of Bologna, Italy), I’m co-organising this panel at the Italian society for Middle East Studies' annual conference in Naples, this June (22-24/06).
Come join us for a conversation about contemporary legacies of the Ottoman Imperial past in Turkish relationships with the Middle East as well as North and East Africa, and beyond! For more details, read the CfP HERE.

Nicola Melis, University of Cagliari, Sardinia

This panel is part of

The XV Conference of SeSaMO, Explaining Crisis, Beyond Chaos. The Middle East and North Africa in Global Change which will take place in presence at the University of Naples ‘L’Orientale’, Naples – Italy the 22-24 of June 2022.

Contacts:
Chiara Pagano, chiara.pagano2@unibo.it
Nicola Melis nmelis@unica.it
Individual paper submissions should be sent directly to us by the 13 of March