CFParticipants: Virtual Community Consultation: Teaching Life Writing (29 March 2022)

Discussion published by Daniel R. Meister on Saturday, March 5, 2022

We would like to invite you to participate in a special community consultation organized by The Teaching Life Writing Project.

Following the success of the Teaching Life Writing International Conference in December 2020, we launched the “Teaching Life Writing”. Continuing the aim of the conference, the Project develops theories and practices concerning the pedagogy of auto/biography while promoting innovative research methodologies that allow scholars to revise, nuance, and advance their research and practices of teaching life writing. This past spring we organized a workshop series and are currently at work on a special issue of a/b: Auto/Biography Studies.

Our next goal is to create an open-source repository of research material and teaching resources for established and emerging scholars, archivists, curators, museum guides, and instructors of community writing classes around the world -- and we want to hear from you!

On Tuesday, March 29, 2022 (3:30-5:00pm MDT), please join us for a virtual community consultation to learn more about “Teaching Life Writing,” to offer feedback on what you’d like to see included, and how you might want to be involved with this exciting initiative.

Click here to register:
https://www.eventbrite.ca/e/the-teaching-life-writing-project-community-consultation-tickets-253313396187

We hope to see you there!

Sincerely,

The Teaching Life Writing Team

Amanda Spallacci, Orly Lael Netzer, and Austen Lee

Related date: