Announcement published by Prof. Mohammad Deyab on Thursday, March 24, 2022

Type:

Conference

Date:

October 15, 2022

Location:

Egypt

Subject Fields:

Humanities, Languages, Literature, Linguistics, Teaching and Learning

Introduction:

In a rapid changing world that we live nowadays, interdisciplinary studies are at crossroads between tradition and innovation. Scholarly activities are at the intersection of computing or digital technologies and the disciplines of the humanities and social sciences. Studies on common practices of research and analysis in the discipline is now questioned in terms of the over whelming spread of technology.

The School of Linguistics & Translation-Badr University in Cairo is pleased to announce its Second International Conference on Literature, Linguistics, Translation and Language Teaching in a hybrid form (online and in person presentations). Academics and scholars from national and international universities and research centers are cordially invited to present their research regarding current issues in the four tracks of the conference in the following languages: Arabic, English, French, Italian, German, Spanish and Chinese.
