

Virtual Speaker Series Event Lianne C. Leddy on Cold War Colonialism March 30th

Discussion published by Emily Oakes on Tuesday, March 29, 2022

Cold War Colonialism: Anishinaabek Responses to Uranium Mining at Elliot Lake by Lianne C. Leddy

In this talk, Leddy will discuss Serpent River First Nation's resilience in confronting colonial extractive practices during the Cold War period. Relying on oral and archival research methods, Leddy argues that Anishinaabek responses to the devastating impacts of uranium mining in our territory were framed by a powerful understanding of health and homeland.

The webinar will begin on Zoom at 7pm ET on March 30th, please click HERE to register