

INTRODUCING

WSJ

General Editor

Michael Leggiere

Geoffrey Wawro
University of North Texas

Sean McMeekin
Bard College

Kevin McCranie
US Naval War College

Russell Hart
Hawaii Pacific University

Doina Pasca Harsanyi
Central Michigan University

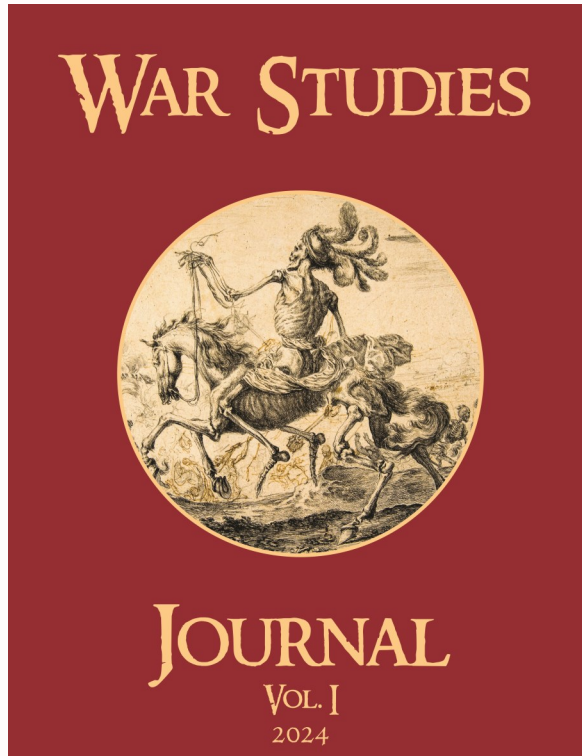

John Kuehn
US Army CGSC

John H. Gill
National Defense University

S. Michael Pavelec
US Air Command and Staff College

Editorial Board

Erica Charters
Oxford

John Stapleton
US Military Academy

Book Review Editor

Frederick Schneid

James Lacey
US Marine Corps War College

Lisa Brady
Boise State University

Lee L. Brice
Western Illinois University

Jeremy Black
Exeter University, emeritus

Ethan Rafuse
US Army CGSC

John Hosler
U S Army CGSC

Christy Pichichero
George Mason University

Xiaobing Li
University of Central Oklahoma

The War Studies Journal is a scholarly venue for those who want to write about the big topics of warfare, strategy, campaigns, battles, theory, military revolutions, and technological change. It is a journal for scholars who wish to read the best of contemporary scholarship and debate military history in a peer-reviewed forum that will appear annually in print and online. The objective of the editorial board is to publish cutting-edge military history from antiquity to the contemporary period. The editorial board solicits submissions on wide-ranging topics that will interest specialists in multiple disciplines and across multiple eras. Each volume will contain original research articles, one essay that explores the historical antecedents of a contemporary issue, and a significant number of book reviews.

<https://history.unt.edu/departments/war-studies-journal>

